

Atlanta International Raceway, finally made its debut on July 31, 1960, it became the seventh superspeedway, a paved facility of one mile or more, to play host to a Cup race. Only three of the original seven; Darlington Raceway, Daytona International Speedway and Lowe's (then Charlotte) Motor Speedway are still in operation. In 2010, the Hampton, GA facility - known as Atlanta Motor Speedway - celebrates its 50th anniversary. Last year AMS hosted the first night race for the track - the Pep Boys Auto 500 on Sunday, Sept. 6 - bringing back to life a tradition of Labor Day racing that began at Lakewood Speedway dating back to the 1940s. There's always something going on at AMS - so check out their website at www.atlantamotorspeedway.com and get your tickets for the March NASCAR race weekend while you're visiting the website! 2009 Photos by MSA Staff.
