

Double Victory for Cardenas and M4 Monster Energy Suzuki

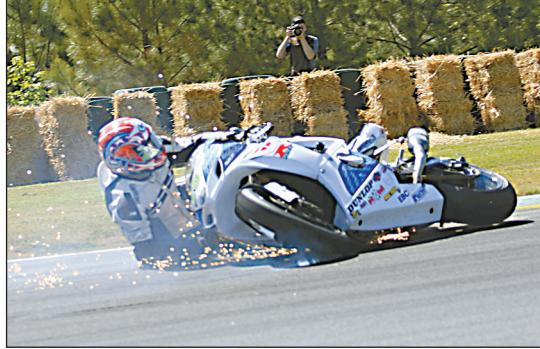

Team M4 Monster Energy Suzuki's Martin Cardenas was in spectacular form again on Sunday, April 18, orchestrating a virtual repeat of Saturday's triumph to complete the AMA Pro Daytona SportBike doubleheader sweep with another win at Road Atlanta.

Despite Saturday's success, Cardenas and his crew put their heads together and improved his GSX-R600 for Sunday, bettering his machine over the front section of the course while retaining its capabilities on the back straight and into the hard-braking Turn 10 chicane.

If anything, Sunday's race was even more thrilling, with close to ten riders challenging at the front and positions being swapped multiple times per lap. Despite the constant shuffling, the Colombian managed to stay in a position of strength throughout.

Cardenas led early, settled into the fight during the middle stages of the race, and then once again made an epic escape over the final two laps.

He took full advantage when his rivals slowed up one another disputing second. The Colombian broke free at the tail end of the race to claim his third win of the 2010 season with a 1.683-second margin of victory at the checkered flag. Visit www.amapracing.com for results. Photos by MSA Staff.
